

LIES NEVER GET YOU A LONG LIFE!

By Albert McBrien

One morning as the colony awoke Annoying Ant screamed at the top of his voice, “Help Help there is a Scary Spider, ARRGH!”

The colony ran over, “where where”, they all questioned in great shock. Suddenly, Annoying Ant appeared out of know where and cried, “HA tricked you.”

As the angry ants shrugged back to their houses, Scary Spider watched over them and hissed, “He is there greatest weakness.”

Later that day in a small market Annoying Ant rung the town bell an everyone came for a Town Meeting.

“Did you Know I ones ate a spider’s leg?” he asked.

One odd ant muttered, “Not again.”

“Ye! Get out you mutt,” cried another.

“That’s because I’m better than you,” Annoying Ant shouted back. This repeated all the time and he was always, absolutely always thinking of new lies to lie about.

But one day as he set up for a trick Scary Spider attacked him, “Help! There is a spider, argh!” He cried in devastation.

Voices arose from the town but all annoying Ant could hear was the footsteps of the spider. BOOM, BOOM, BOOM!

As the ant ran he bumped into the tree.

“Should be looking where you’re going,” hissed the spider

Suddenly there was a piecing scream and annoying ant was never, ever seen again.