The Hound and The Fox

By Joel

One calm, peaceful day, a calm fox was sleeping underneath a blue berry tree. 'This is very soothing' explained Fox. As the fox was

Peacefully resting under his tree, the hugest hound in the village interrupted his nap and challenged him to a race

The Fox accepted the Hound's challenge actively and the race began in an unusual way. The Hound started running half-way-through the countdown! 'Cheater cheater pumpkin eater. Get back here!' Fox screamed. But the hound had disappeared from sight.

The Fox couldn't believe the Hound. He had started the race halfway through the time you are meant to start a race. 'Urrrrggggggghhhhh' groaned the fox. "Well, if hound cheated in the race he challenged me, so be it". So the fox just walked across the course calmly.

Meanwhile the hound was sprinting along the race course, saying to himself "this is relaxing" hound was starting to get burnt. He spotted a giant tree and he said "that's a good place to rest"

Meanwhile, fox was walking along the track and in about 15 minutes, he saw Hound lying at a tree. He carefully walked past him and then he ran toward the finish swiftly.

Hound then woke up to his surprise, he had lost the race and he almost blew up but no one would listen to Hound. The Hound left and then slept under the same tree that Fox was sleeping in!