

Cathedral School Reading Survey 2018

Read lots of books. Recommend them to other people and use inspiration from the book to write your own.

Well I read a lot already but in the beginning of Year 5 none of us were that enthusiastic about reading but now everyone wants to read every minute and every second and Miss Henderson has to tell us to put our books away but it's so hard to. I always try to encourage people to read because it really show in your writing.

The thing that stops me from reading more is when I have to go to bed and I don't want to put the book down because I am really loving the book.

What do we need to be able to read?

You have to have a really strong understanding of your phonics so you can sound out the word if you did not know how to pronounce it before. You should also get your parents to listen to you read because they can give you tips what you can improve on. Maybe you could even listen to them read.

We need an engaging book.

An open mind and a dose of creativity.

A nice atmosphere is necessary if you want to read. You need a place that is comfy, and you need to either be alone, or with people we know.

Books that apply challenges and vary your book choices

What does a good reader do?

Is able to switch off and allow themselves to be fully engrossed by a story.

Make sure you find a quiet area to read in so your focus is just on reading.

A good reader reads every day and uses really interesting information, or interesting words in their writing.

A good reader never gives up.

Try to find new books and try to challenge themselves.

A good reader reads a lot and reads text that is challenging for them and they look up words that they don't know the meaning of.

What would make/makes you want to read more?

Funny books.

What makes me read more is books that I get interested in and would never want to stop.

What makes me want to read more is the intensity of the book so that it grips me from the first chapter.

A good story.

The book is so interesting that you can't put it down.

Friends who tell you about lots of books.

My mum read me some books and I really liked them so I tried to read them on my own and I could read them.

Has anything at school helped you read more? Why?

The book bingo I don't really have a reason but it just inspires me to read.

Having lots of books at school.

The thing that helped me read more is going to the library and picking out books I would really enjoy.

Creating book bingo cards has helped me to read more because we all had to choose books that we have to read and I really enjoyed making them so I made another one and kept on finishing over again and then I had loads of books to read and it keeps me reading a lot.

Book week because it introduces a variety of books.

After lunch we read for twenty minutes. This helps me get better at reading as I get a chance to read more.

Something at school that has helped me read more is the Book Bingo scheme. This is because it gives you certain books to read, that you might not have read before, but you find that you enjoy it. It gives you the chance to try new books, and recommend them to others.

Well I read a lot already but in the begin of Year 5 none of us were that enthusiastic about reading but now everyone wants to read every minute and every second and Miss Henderson has to tell us to put our books away but it's so hard to as I said on the 'What would make/makes you want to read more. And I always try to encourage people to read because it really show in your writing.

What reading do you do at home?

I read with my mum

Independent reading

I read to my parents sometimes and read to myself in a comfy place.

I read almost every night at home for at least half an hour and me or my parents record it in my reading record.

I read my book every day.

I read with my family

Reading before going to sleep/on the tube

In the evening in my head and also in the morning when I am passing time when I am in bed.

Most of the time independently and sometimes with a parent.

At home, I either read books that I also read at school, but sometimes I also read the fun books, which might not be too challenging. I sometimes read comic books, or diaries with pictures.

I do reading every night before I go to bed, and in the morning, if I wake up early enough.

I read with my mum and with my sister.

I read my school books and I read newspapers when my dad comes back from work.
